1. LULU: "Oh, Leander, something awful has happened! The cook has left!"
LEANDER: "Oh, my poor little bird, don't 'er bl. I can cook the steak and make the soup. Don't you know I went out camping once?"

2. LEANDER: "And what do you think of that, my little owney own? Soup boiling to beat the band, and I am now ready to broil the steak. Cooks! BAH!"
LULU: "Oh, Leander, you certainly are a lovely husband."

3. LEANDER: "Oas whis! There must have been dynamite in that pot!"
LULU: "No, you goose, you should have tilted the lid a little to let the steam escape."

4. LEANDER: "Steam escape! Let all the aroma of the soup escape, that's what! I'll keep this beastly lid on if I have to hold it on."
LULU: "Oh Leander, look! The steak is on fire!"

5. LULU: "Leander! Leander! There goes the pot lid again. Oh, the steak will be burned to a crisp. Oh, how careless of you, Leander!"
LEANDER: "Hang the pot lid! Ye gods! Send for the fire department!"

6. LULU: "Oh, Leander, your show of anger makes me tremble for our future!"
LEANDER: "Contound cooks! Contound soup! Contound cooking! Get on your wraps. We'll go to a restaurant for dinner we will!"

FROM SECLUDED CONVENT LIFE TO MAD WHIRL OF SMART SOCIETY

MRS. THEODORE P. SHONTS AND THE "SHONT'S TWINS"

THE SOCIAL DEBUT OF THE SHONT'S TWINS

FROM demure little schoolgirls, shut out from the world behind convent walls, and knowing hardly more of it than one of the guineas who might peep out upon it from beyond the convent gates, to—present—a presentation at the gorgeous drawing room of the king, gowned in satin, with priceless strings of pearls about their throats, and an abrupt plunge into the very smartest whirlpool of the English society which eddies about the court—"is a transformation like the chaste, simple fairy tales which the sisters only allowed the little pupils to read in the way of fiction, a transition so sudden and so acute that any young girl's head might be fairly turned by it.

And then after a kindly bow and a smile all to themselves from His Majesty, no hand in hand they came in and made their obeisance to him, to have a father with no end of money to lavish on their lurching, and to be all in the same breath acclaimed as the two most brilliant and successful debutantes of the London season—where is the girl whose young heart would not be stirred by such an opportunity and such a triumph?

It was this way fate had treated the two daughters—the "Shonts twins," as they are called familiarly—of Sir Theodore Perry Shonts, the chairman

HOW MR. AND MRS. LLOYD WILLEY WON A PRIZE FOR LIVING FOR A YEAR AND A DAY WITHOUT ANY SORT OF A FAMILY JAR.

London, October 19. The custom was originated by the old monks of Dunmow, and has been continued as it is called in America—living in this day, although latterly much of the in the latter in the happy home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Willey, in Colgate Grove, Bow, London, testifies that this husband and wife have lived together "for a year and a day" without a single family jar and without once wishing themselves unmarried.

This same "ditch," which amounts to nearly half of a prison, fat bones, porker, is the famous Dunmow Fitch, which the ancient festival court of Dunmow has awarded annually for the last 800 years to the married couple who, placed on trial before a bearded judge and a jury of six teachers and six monks, could prove perfect wedded happiness for a year and a day.

According to the usual custom the court was held on a flag-backed platform in the open air. About a thousand persons, of all grades of society, some in their carriages and others on seats in front of the platform, witnessed the trial. The prize fitch of bacon was conspicuously displayed upon the jury box.

After the plaintiffs had submitted to all the witty questions regarding their happy home which occurred to their own lawyer and the counsel for the ditch, and the lawyers and the judges had summed up in a way to make the undertakers smile with laughter, and the jury had awarded the bacon, then came a drowsy talk between in smug trucks to "celebrate" the happy and triumphant couple.

Not only Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Willey, but the bacon, too, were "chained" to that is, carried in chains borne by men at the head of a procession of cheering spectators.

While the trial left no room for doubt that Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Willey were indeed an ideally happy married couple, a large part of the examination by counsel was laughter inspiring—for example, the following, when Mrs. Lloyd Willey was on the stand:

Q. You first met your husband at a ball, is that correct? A. I did. I missed him the moment he entered.

Q. Oh, did he stop on your street? (Laughter.) A. No, he looked at me at the same moment.

Q. Were you at all agitated? A. Yes, I was. (Laughter.)

Q. Did you think you had met your affiance? A. I don't quite know what I thought. (Laughter.)

Q. And you are miserable in his absence?

How a Husband Can Avoid Family Jars and Make His Wife Happy Every Day in the Year.

BY MR. LLOYD WILLEY.

My wife and I know that we were entitled to that fitch of bacon. We fell in love almost at first sight—at least I did—and we were both sensible enough to arrange the details of our marriage life that there would be no occasion for family jars.

One essential thing is to have a telephone in your private house if you can afford to have one, and so be able to telephone home when you are coming to dinner. Then I always leave my wife to select for me whatever dainty dishes she cares to, and so I have sometimes rather a surprise when I get home.

I always give her as much money for housekeeping—and I let her have it regularly. We each mind our own business. I do not interfere with the house arrangements, and she leaves my business arrangements entirely to me.

After business I always make straight for home, and my wife, as you can imagine, is always glad to see me. Everything I wanted to do at home I have always done, and my wife never raises her voice in objection.

I have been abroad several times, but I always prefer to sleep at home, as there is no bed like your own. It is not a nice experience to wake up in a strange bed in an hotel about 5 o'clock in the morning. You cannot walk about in a hotel at an early hour if you wish to avoid making a nuisance of yourself.

If ever I am travelling about Great Britain, not out of indifference, but that he doesn't get matter where I am. I'll, and soon you will find that your telephone home cannot get on without you, and you will not give the cause to get on without him.

We get a great deal of satisfaction out of our telephone—especially when my husband is out of town on business. At other times I can usually depend on his getting home to dinner almost exactly on the hour. It is easy for him, and he knows that it makes me happy.

Of course I know, and every wife ought to know, that nowadays men must have business engagements now and then outside their regular business hours. This is something that can't be helped. But, knowing that I am able to make his home more attractive to him than any other place, I know that my husband will not make those engagements often than his business requires.

How a Wife Can Avoid Family Jars and Make Her Husband Happy Every Day in the Year.

BY MRS. LLOYD WILLEY.

Yes, I can truthfully say that "for a year and a day" my husband and I have not had one cross word. We have lived a year in perfect happiness and harmony, save at a time, not a dispute, and even a sulky moment. I will gladly tell you why our married life is so untroubled. I believe a woman's place is at home looking after her husband and family. I am very pleased, however, when my husband comes home to take me out to dinner. People who are married ought to mind their own business. I always dress myself about dress, and I would not think of marrying with my husband about the collar of his tie. I don't mind what he wears so long as he is decent and nice. I don't even mind if he is not talking to me when he is at home. I am happy so long as I know that he is near me.

I like going to theatre with him, but after all there is no place like home, although we live in the best of the East, always that my husband can be near his work. I think I can say that we have a very nice and comfortable home. I like my husband, I am fond of an occasional and as he is shorty to go to America on business, I hope to be able to go with him.

I believe above everything in trusting my husband, and I never live beyond my husband. I always believe in having a happy home in hand. There are times, therefore, when you are able to lead your husband without making a nuisance of yourself.

A man will feel very nervous and uneasy if he is travelling. Tragedy often arises from indifference. See that he doesn't get matter where I am. I'll, and soon you will find that your telephone home cannot get on without you, and you will not give the cause to get on without him.

We get a great deal of satisfaction out of our telephone—especially when my husband is out of town on business. At other times I can usually depend on his getting home to dinner almost exactly on the hour. It is easy for him, and he knows that it makes me happy.

Of course I know, and every wife ought to know, that nowadays men must have business engagements now and then outside their regular business hours. This is something that can't be helped. But, knowing that I am able to make his home more attractive to him than any other place, I know that my husband will not make those engagements often than his business requires.

A wife must not forever be hanging about her husband's neck. Men do not have nearly so great a capacity for demonstrating affection as women do. Three-fourths of the time they prefer an atmosphere of cheerful security—and there are many moments when they neither want to talk nor be talked to.

I learned this lesson quite early in my married life, and I am sure it has saved many hours of uselessness, in which I might otherwise have imagined that my husband's love was growing cold. Now I honestly believe that such a thing cannot happen, when the husband possesses the average of amount of goodness, without the wife being worthy to receive it.

Upon these laid principles of happy married life my husband and I agreed at the start, and we have never ignored them. After that it was an understanding about the natural division of labor and responsibilities between the two partners. Each of us had a separate department, of which each was the headmaster, and, as I have said, some for both of us.

But when he is in that home, we are truly "one" in the enjoyment of it. Every future of our married life depends upon the understanding of it for joy and peace for her.

The reason, however, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Willey accept quite seriously, confining in detail for publication just why they deserve the "Dunmow Fitch" and what they are perfectly "happy, though men, mind."

"Hail! I Will Kill Him & Would a Wife!"

Relentless Pursuit All Over the Face of the Earth of a Dashing Young Officer Who Has Run Off to Do as She Pleases

Kill Wife and Lover.

With the Rich The Woman Has a Right to Do as She Pleases

Wife of One of the Czar's Generals

By DR. EMIL REICH, the Eminent Philosopher.

I General Ouchakoff treated his wife honorably, then I most emphatically say he commits no crime, but rather does a useful act in killing not only the man, but the woman who has been false to him.

The husband who does not shrink from using the extreme measures to protect his honor raises the standard of domestic virtue throughout the community and thereby contributes greatly toward the welfare and happiness of the race. If he shrinks from taking the life of the man who has done him the last possible injury, he would not be worth calling a husband. It is the attitude of husbands with critical indifference or even fear that leads to the deplorable decay of family life and domestic virtue which we witness in society today.

A few more husbands of General Ouchakoff's vigorous character would be of enormous value in cleansing and regenerating society.

BY BERNARD SHAW, Social Philosopher and Playwright.

WHAT are the police about? Here are several well-known persons openly inviting one special individual to murder two other special individuals.

The passion they are appealing to is the most abominable of all passions—jealousy—and the motive inciting those persons is the pure love of sensational mischief and romantic posing. The whole thing is a public scandal.

Madame Ouchakoff has as much right to leave her husband as I have to eat vegetables for my dinner. To kill her or to object to her affections would be just as right and reasonable as it would be to kill me for not eating dead animals, perhaps rather less so.

This case only indicates that some of us have not advanced even a little beyond the formula of the most degraded savages on earth. These people regard women as absolute personal property, a chattel. When she goes away with a man of her own free will and intelligent design, they treat the man as if he had stolen an object out of a shop window, but an object of such extraordinary value that the theft of it merits death. A few years ago it was death for stealing a sheep.

of his room at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, the a hungry and enraged tiger as he descended the conduct of the American authorities and reveal vengeance upon Captain Esipoff.

"It's when I get him I will kill him as I would a wolf," he cried, grinding his teeth. "Hail! he is not a wolf for a wolf will fight when he is trapped. But he will not fight. He is not a man. I will follow him day and night until I have him at the point of my sword. It will be a joy to kill him."

"I have plenty of time. I am in no hurry now. I am sure I will get him."

"I would like to know that I am coming, for it will be fun—yes, with a address overlooking it all. But I shall kill him. It shall be my one object in life until it is accomplished. Then I shall take up better things again. I go on LA PRIMA tomorrow. I go to Havre."

"I was of Petersburg," said the General affix, "when they told me that he had gone away with Esipoff. I wanted to see him and to see the truth. I ran away as fast as I could to leave the truth, playing all the time that it was not true—that I was in a dream. When I got home she was gone. There was a great vacancy; all was very still in the house. Then I knew what it was."

"I had made a vow that I should kill him—that I should find her, perhaps to bring her back. I knew that I would find him no matter how long the journey might be to reach him, no matter how long I would take to find him."

"I followed him to Cherebourg after getting an indefinite leave of absence. When I got there it was only to find that he had gone elsewhere. It took me many days. But I followed on. Then I got here and learned they have gone back to France."

Chased Twice Across the Atlantic.

The General took the next French liner sailing, which happened to be the first ship to La Havre, and he landed at Cherebourg rather late than a week after the runaway couple.

In the meantime they had gone over to England, where their extraordinary and dramatic flight half over the world has aroused great interest. An eager discussion of it is going on. The question generally discussed is, "Has the injured husband any right to kill his wife's lover?" Dr. Emil Reich, a German professor, who is regarded by many English people as the greatest living authority upon the female character, says that the General should kill his wife and her lover, and advances profound philosophic reasons justifying those actions. Bernard Shaw, the brilliant socialist and playwright, strongly upholds the right of the woman to do as she pleases, and declares that Mrs. Ouchakoff has as much right to go away with another man than her husband as he, Bernard Shaw, has to eat vegetables for dinner.

Many English people express amazement that the American Government should so far violate the principle of freedom and personal liberty as to disrupt the runaway couple from the United States.

When the runaways reached Havre they prevailed upon a fellow passenger to impersonate Captain Esipoff on the register boat train going to Paris. In order that they might escape the General's spies. This was temporarily successful. They then went to London and planned to flee to England, where the activity of foreign spies is regarded with extreme displeasure. But before they left Havre the spies found them.

Two spies got on board the Channel steamer and traveled with the pair over to England. They accompanied them to London and kept up an incessant watch over them while they stayed there, even following Mrs. Ouchakoff when she went out to make small purchases.

Escape in an Automobile.

Captain Esipoff and Mrs. Ouchakoff stayed at a hotel near Victoria Station. In London they found that they were incessantly watched by Russian spies they determined to make a dash for liberty. They hired a fast automobile, and, having said their good-byes, dashed out of the door with their baggage, jumped into the car, and drove away. They were followed by the spies, but they did not reckoned with the automobile. They jumped into a "taxi" cab and started in pursuit, but, naturally, they were unable to keep up with the automobile. They were completely lost.

It is stated by one of the English papers that the runaways went first to a country hotel and that then they went to a northern sea port in England, which they were going to sail on a long voyage. It is more likely that, having escaped their pursuers, they returned to London and took their ship—probably a Frenchman and criminal line—for the East from the London docks. In that case they are now on their way to India and China.

General Ouchakoff arrived only at Havre and was immediately informed that his quarry had gone to England. He went there in pursuit, and as they had wasted some time, arrived in London only two days after they had disappeared from that place in the automobile.

In the meantime the British Government had taken notice of the matter and had decided that a Russian general should not be permitted to carve his victims from the British Empire. Orders were given to Scotland Yard that detectives should prevent the Russian spies from molesting Captain Esipoff and Mrs. Ouchakoff and that they should restrain the General from committing any breach of the peace.

As soon as the General was positively in which direction the runaways have sailed he will continue his pursuit of them and keep it up, even if he is obliged to sail the world. No one can doubt that sooner or later this drama will end in blood.

Captain Esipoff and Madame Ouchakoff. From a Photograph Taken in Paris During a Momentary Rest in Their Flight Round the World.

FOR five months General Ouchakoff, of the Russian Army, has been pursuing his erring wife and her partner in sin, Captain Gabriel Esipoff, round the world.

All over Europe, across the Atlantic to New York, and down back again, he has followed them. According to the last report they had sailed for an unknown destination in the Far East from an unnamed port in the north of England.

The General swears he will kill Esipoff like a wild beast. Everybody believes the General will do it, for he is a man of great strength and ferocity and of average temper. Esipoff believes it. That is why he is acting round the world like a hunted creature. He and his companion are reduced to a state of absolute misery, mental and physical. They are in horror that the savage husband will spring upon them and slaughter one or both of them. Their nerves are increased by the spies of the General, who have followed them incessantly during the whole of their five months' flight. He has great financial resources.

It was to-day last that this drama began. General Ouchakoff is a favorite officer of the Czar. His service in the Japanese war is regarded as highly creditable. Whatever he lacks in military science he makes up in personal bravery and ferocity. He is a man of the General's type. He is the kind of military watchdog the Czar depends on to save him from the attacks of revolutionaries and assassins.

In May General Ouchakoff was engaged in protecting the Czar in his palace at Peterhof. He was extremely busy. He had a young wife, pretty, romantic and sentimental. The brutal, brawny old general was far from fulfilling her youthful dream, and besides that he suspected her.

At an official reception she met Gabriel Esipoff, a handsome young captain in the Tsar's Regiment of Cossacks of Orelsk. They fell in love at first sight. They met frequently and all St. Petersburg society talked about their intimacy. Before the General realized the facts they ran away.

Then the General became a raging demon. He swore that he would kill Esipoff. He ordered indefinite leave from the military authorities and started in pursuit. The Czar sympathized with him. All the embassies and consulates of Russia abroad were placed at his disposal to help track the fugitives. He telegraphed ahead to the consulates and ordered them to engage spies to watch the runaways.

They first went to Paris. But the General was not there. They then went to Berlin, Vienna, London, Madrid, Valencia, Algiers, Alcazar. They tried every conceivable device to throw the General off the scent, but they found he was always hard on their heels with the help of information from his spies. They were only able to continue their flight because of the great sum of ready money Mrs. Ouchakoff had taken with her. She was very rich.

From Paris they went down to Gibraltar and took the North German Lloyd steamship Koenig Albert for the United States, believing they would find safety in the traditional land of freedom. Within twelve hours the General arrived at Gibraltar. He immediately telegraphed to the Russian Consul-General in New York to hold them or send them back to Russia in custody to him.

Then he took the next available ship for New York which happened to be the Kaiser Wilhelm.

When the Koenig Albert arrived at Brooklyn Bay, Captain Gabriel Esipoff, the Object of the Man Hunt, in the Uniform of His Cossack Regiment.

United States Immigration Commissioner. Without looking an instant they went on board and took possession of the sleeping port.

It is presumed that he told the sleeping couple that they were liable to be deported from this country as improper persons and that the best thing they could do was to leave the United States immediately without waiting for an inquiry. He was not willing to hold them in a convenient place where they could be snatched by the General, nor was he willing that they should be allowed to run at large in the country. As they have since remarked, about all they saw of the land of liberty was the large statue that bears that name in New York Bay.

THE SCENES OF LINCOLN'S EARLY LOVE TO BE PRESERVED FOREVER

HISTORIC SPOTS SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF LINCOLN, PURCHASED BY MR. HEARST

IN ILLINOIS.

ANN
LINCOLN'S SWEETHEART

NEW

ABRAHAM
LINCOLN
AS PRESIDENT

The Old Store at New Salem, Ill., Once Owned by Abraham Lincoln.

EXACTLY forty years ago the great national election came in the State election in New York does this year on Nov. 6, which made Abraham Lincoln President. And although the words and maxims and principles of the noble patriot have been treasured by all earnest friends of honest government, little has been done to preserve the scenes and places associated with the early life and struggles of Lincoln.

It was in Illinois that Abraham Lincoln, from the humblest beginning of any youth, country bred on the frontier of civilization, worked and studied and prepared himself to become the actual preserver of his country. The place most closely identified with the formative period of his life is the ploughed field which was once the town of New Salem.

Here Lincoln first realized, eagerly, but with sufficient force to revolutionize his energies and ambitions—that there might be within him possibilities of a great and useful career; and here, at odd moments, in the midst of harassing material difficulties, as laborer and student and self-reliant, made of him self the one man of all men upon whom the country itself relied to preserve what George Washington had fathered—the United States of America.

And now the old ploughed field, the old house, the old scenes where these things occurred—the home characteristic spot on earth which had to do with the making of Abraham Lincoln for his country's service—has been purchased by Congressman William Randolph Hearst, and is to be preserved forever as a public shrine where all true Americans may pay tribute to the grandest memory their country's history affords.

In spite of the weather which, up to now, the ground most hallowed in the early struggles of Lincoln has suffered, it is the destination of many thousands of pilgrims every year. Directly across the Sangamon River from where New Salem stood, of late years the Old New Salem Chautauqua has not and has erected handsome public buildings and cottages.

These meetings have been attended by as many as 15,000 visitors from thirty-seven States and Territories and from five foreign countries. The proximity of the old site of the Illinois town most closely associated with the development of Lincoln's character has made this already the most attractive of the various Chautauqua gathering points.

In the restoration of available New Salem-Indiana, buildings which will make this spot chief among all Lincoln memorials, a ledge across the river will connect it with the improvements of the Chautauqua Association, and thus the whole vicinity, on both sides of the river, will be included in one destination of pilgrim parties.

So New Salem revival will be the memory of Lincoln was Mount Vernon is to the memory of Washington, Monticello to Jefferson, and the Hearst to Jackson. It is intended that it shall be the coming generations an ever-renewing reminder of the early trials and griefs and the first triumphs of the genius of Abraham Lincoln.

This was Mr. Hearst's idea in buying and preserving these historic places in the Old New Salem Chautauqua, and it is probable that Mr. Hearst will provide for a Lincoln Museum to be erected here.

The other homes of Lincoln's youth—in Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois—were but places of transient residence, and their locations are only guessed at by the light of shadowy traditions. Nor were they of important influence upon his character.

There is nothing uncertain as to where Lincoln had his dwelling place at New Salem, nor about what he did or learned or suffered while he lived there. The remains of the old dam in the Sangamon River, upon which his father's stock when he was ten years old, "man's job," are still there. The old wall that ran alongside the mill where he took his meals. The road that he surveyed and located runs along the bluff upon which the village stood. Some of the very trees under which he read law, learned grammar and the science of surveying, loaded, wrestled or joked with his plowman companions are still standing.

It is true that of all the sites and scenes related by legends nothing remains of New Salem but bits of broken dwellings that have been turned up by ploughs.

But the spot of each dwelling place and store is marked. Two trees that have grown up since Lincoln's day stand where stood the village store, in which he had his first employment there. An old well, now filled up, but soon to be restored, shows the site of the building where Lincoln lived, and which he afterward owned. And in an equally certain manner the location of each of the other cabins that crowded the hill is known.

There is not a foot of New Salem Hill that has not been trod, and many times by Lincoln. Most of all, the hill is sacred to the great love and the great grief of his life.

Upon the very top of New Salem Hill, in the tavern that stood by the old well, lived the fair-haired girl who, more than any one else, perhaps, influenced Lincoln's career for good, and whose death haunted him to a lifetime of sorrow—Ann Rutledge. It was at the old tavern that Lincoln carried on his courtship and overcame his shyness, and only a little distance away from where they walked together is now the grave of the sweetheart he mourned so sincerely at his life long.

It was from Ann Rutledge that Lincoln learned politeness and shyness. And for her sake he became a surveyor and then a lawyer. It was from her he took his religious convictions. She was his protectress in all his earlier labors, and her death haunted him, and gave him the strength to endure all the sorrows that fell to his lot after the loss of his sweetheart.

All that Lincoln was New Salem means and he got there the first time of popular acclaim and approval, for New Salem "discovered" him. The little village gave him his first office and made him a legislator; it taught him responsibilities, even the chastening of a defeat.

Me went there a spawling, overgrown, unlearned boy, and he left it a matured, proved and matured man of genius and ability.

Seven years, to all, Lincoln lived at New Salem. He saw it first on the 10th of April, 1831, and he left it early in the late winter of 1835. He was twenty-two years old when he arrived there, and twenty-nine when he left for Springfield to be admitted to the bar.

In those seven years he was a true business, clerk, miller, stockkeeper, soldier, tavern-keeper, rail splitter, farmer, surveyor, legislator, and, in his own expression, "a fighting" lawyer.

In the central Illinois country even of the early times we think, and for half a century now, referred to by their proximity to or their remoteness from the "great south" in 1831-32. That was an era for this part of the State the last of the falling storm to Virginia. The snow lay four feet deep in the forest, and before it came southern and central Illinois raised cotton, but never afterward.

The flood that followed the melting of the great snow took Lincoln to New Salem, and because the receding waters left his "barboat" "stuck" on the bank that obstructed the river there he "stuck" to the town until his own life had been determined and his destiny settled.

New Salem seems to have come into existence solely for the development of Lincoln's character, for it placed him practically nothing in the way of selling the "roundabout country." It became a training point just in time to permit Lincoln to establish himself there, and it vanished from the face of the earth as soon as he had gone elsewhere. For Lincoln, rich, was moved away, to the last sick and stout, and were not left to rot, after the general fashion of deserted villages.

The beginning of New Salem was when James Rutledge and the Rev. John Cameron—men who were to do much in forming Lincoln's character—left the dead upon which the boat stood, and established a mill there in 1825. It was a sparsely settled country then, and part of what was then Sangamon, but is now Morgan, County, for an old history says the patronage of the mill was "from fifty miles around." Lincoln helped to bring about the date of the little village himself, first by falling in business, and finally by taking out and plating, as the Deputy Surveyor of Sangamon County, the village of Petersburg, the would some time become the metropolis of the State, Warburton stood out for the name of Georgetown, and Larkin was as stubborn for Petersburg.

All the time that Lincoln was running the line and staking off lots the arguments continued, until at last the surveyor became exasperated with the waste of language.

"Don't you think you're wasting a lot of energy without getting anywhere," as the cat said to the puppy that was chasing his tail," the lucky surveyor finally suggested when the evening discussion threatened to end in disaster. "Try a rubber of old shingles as an arbitrator and get the job done decently and in order."

The belligerents agreed, and Lincoln employed one John Warburton, was the first zone and Larkin the second. When the man who insisted on "Petersburg" opened the deciding game by turning two Jacks in one deal, and staked off his "jacking out" when his opponent had only one point to go.

In one deal, the game ended to be called "Knave-town," the umpire announced, "but I reckon it will have to get along as Petersburg."

If New Salem flourished for its brief day purely that Lincoln might grow to maturity upon its hill, it would seem also that Dayton Office was the great ordained John the Baptist of the great liberation. Whence Office came no one knows, nor ever knew

Fall Coats for Street, Traveling, and Sports

The Smart Autumn Wrap Has Piped Seams, with a tendency to contrasting colors in the piping.

Loose Coats Much the Fad This Season, But All Kinds of Pitted and Semi-Pitted Coats Are Worn.

Coats May Be long or short, to please the fancy.

Coat Materials Range Through Coveris, Tweeds, Wool Mixtures and Broadcloths.

A—Long, Padded Practical Coat, in Double-Breasted Style and Piped and Trimmed with Green.

AA—Back View of Coat A.

B—A Modish Outdoor Coat, Showing the Big Double Pockets and Leather Trim-mings.

C—Carriage Wrap in Black Crepe de Chine, Trimmed with Lace, Shired Velvet Muffs and Sain Quillings, and Showing the New Fashionable Panel Effects.

THIS season has no hard and fast rules about wraps and styles in coats and suits. The fashion is to suit all forms and tastes. This coat of today may be long or short, light or heavy and of color in harmony or contrast with the costume. It may also be trimmed or untrimmed, according to taste and to the purposes for which the wrap will be used.

Crepe de Chine is a new material for dressy wraps and there are now many qualities and weights of this charming fabric that wear very well for coat purposes. The colorless varieties wear in very effective, with the plain qualities and both blend harmoniously with lace and velvet.

A number of attractive sorts of soft silk can come in weight especially adapted to the making of dinner coats, while the bewitching dinner coats known as flowered coats and other than dinner coats are made in this attractive material of pretty creases and brocades.

For practical coats of the long, loose variety, tweeds and Scotch mixtures are very popular and these can be garnished with various coat materials like broadcloths and simple face cloths which make up very effective and are very popular.

There is a great demand for loose coats and a great many of these are worn. They are equally suitable over a tight dress or a short-skirted frock gown and are comfortable for either street or motor wear.

Coats for golfing and other outdoor sports are lavishly done, while many which prefer the loose riding jacket to the riding habit are now wearing the only correct thing.

Coats for cultural purposes and activity rather than recreation, like long sleeves, an innovation in this respect which is both comfortable and practical for coats for dinner occasions are now made with sleeves of three-quarter length instead of the elbow sleeves which prevailed in Spring fashions.

Since the skirts of last Spring are in the cut used for autumn frocks women with an eye to economy are lengthening their elbow sleeves by adding deeper cuffs, an operation that is quite simple and converts the sleeve from a waste to a saving.

Figure A illustrates a very smart long coat, which is also extremely practical. It is made fitted to the back and comparatively loose in front. In the model it is made of dark cloth, but might be made in reversé, Scotch tweed or some one of the excellent wool mixtures suggested for making up practical long coats. There is an opening on each side and in the back of the coat which makes it possible to readily get at one's skirt, if that should be desired. The skirt is made of a solid holding up. The skirt is made of a solid holding up. The skirt is made of a solid holding up.

That forms a double-breasted coat. Both the collar and cuffs are plain green, the latter which are large and turned up, are simply attached, but the collar is decorated with gold embroidery. Green ribbon hangs from the collar.

under the fronts of the small coat collar brown, piped with yellow, and in other attractive color combinations. It makes panel is decorated with small attached tabs almost to the edge of the dress.

Quite a different style of coat is shown in figure B. It falls to below the knees. Large coat sleeves are full length and although there is no reason why a woman need not have it longer if she wants it, it is made for practical purposes, of which nothing is to be made the least, for those of us who don't own motor cars of their own spread a good deal of time in going about in motor cars, and few of us are too poor to afford these luxuries of city life.

Figure C is a man's coat which might be made in a variety of ways. The pockets are big enough to make decorative in department store silver at the sight of them. The woman shows that if they can't have their pockets as widely distributed as are pocket in their brother's coat, they can multiply the number by sewing one pocket on top of another. There are double pockets and double flaps on all the three immense ones on the front of the coat. That makes six pockets. If you please, and all safely buttoned up, as becomes a real safe pocket. Who knows what secret mirrors and powder boxes, note books, and some thing out of the pocket won't be hidden? This button coat has a broad over the collar and neck, trimmed like the wide collar with attaching. Both over and under may be turned up and fastened double-breasted, and the collar may be turned up and fastened double-breasted, and the collar may be turned up and fastened double-breasted.

Large cuffs are trimmed with attaching and the cuffs are turned up and fastened double-breasted, and the cuffs are turned up and fastened double-breasted.

CHAPTER XXXIII

THE day after we got back to the city, I went to call on Mary Jane, and we all started out for a walk. Finally the idea struck us of taking Tiger down to the Aquarium and showing him the fish. We took the elevated road, which runs right to Battery Park, where the Aquarium is situated, and soon found ourselves right at the front door. Tiger never knew much about fish, so he had no idea what a treat there was in store for him. Some of the tanks contain very rare and unusual fish that are very beautiful and remind you of the rainbow set with diamonds and tipped off with gold. There are big fish and little fish—most everything except whales.

There are people by the name of Fish, but we didn't see any there. Isn't it funny the names some people have? I know a man named Hamm, and there was a man named Bacon who didn't write Shakespeare's works. Mary Jane said she saw a sign Fish & Waters, but I saw a better one than that in Buffalo; it was Irish & English.

While we were passing along the galleries looking at first one tank and then another we met an old man who just began talking to us. Old men don't need to be introduced to little children, they just begin talking. That old man was an old, old fisherman, and he loved to go to the Aquarium and watch the fish. He told us a lot of funny things about fish, but Tiger didn't believe him. Here is a story he told us about a dream he had once:

"It was the good ship Mary Jane (that made Mary Jane laugh). We had sailed away from New York with a cargo of ice cream, cigar stamps and telegrams, and had made fine progress for about ten days. One night the captain let out a squawk in a blood-curdling voice: 'All hands on deck!' All hands were on deck already, but it was a deck of cards, so the captain explained that he meant feet. It seems a terrible calm was coming up over our stern bow just next to our starboard port, and the captain wanted us to get out and push the ship. Well, anyhow the calm struck us, carrying away our spinnaker jib and boom gaff, or words to those effect, so there was nothing for us to do but to telephone for a pair of oars and wait for them to come.

HE WAS AN OLD FISHERMAN, AND HE LOVED TO WATCH THE FISH.

"Now, we all fell asleep, and here is a dream I had. I dreamed that we were wrecked and I sank to the bottom of the sea and bumped bang into McGinty. 'Hello,' he said, 'let's go and have a drink.' So we went looking for Davey Jones, and were told he was at the 'Sign of the Mock Turtle,' which was a submarine tavern. When we reached it there stood Davey Jones at the bar drinking a bottle of Bass. Three young skates were sitting over in the corner singing the red, white and blue fish, so we went into another room.

"Mrs. Whale was talking to her husband and striking him for a new hat, which she wanted all trimmed in sea robins and scallops. 'Charge it,' he said, and she told him their credit was no good, that it would be C. O. D. 'Well,' said Mr. Whale, in a hoarse sea voice, 'you're the vainest fish that ever came down the pike. Go bareheaded; you have your new Margolite waver.'

"Ha!" cried the weakfish, 'the penfish is mightier than the swordfish.' 'Shut up!' said old man Shark, who runs the tavern. No wonder Shark is cross; he and his wife fight like catfish and dogfish. 'Well,' yawned the eel, 'I'm going up and lie down on my oyster bed and rest my muscles.'

"A clam tittered, and then there was such a silence you could hear an oyster. 'I'd rather be a dogfish and bay the moonfish than such a Roman,' said a mermaid sitting over in the corner with a big sponge and a couple of young shells.

"Have you ever seen a starfish cast a shadow?' asked McGinty, and every one groaned. 'It's on me,' said he, and they all took bubbles."

"What happened then?" asked Tiger. "Oh, I woke up then," said the old fisherman. "Good bye." And he strolled away.

(To be continued next Sunday.)

BOSTON AMERICAN, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1906.

THE NATIONAL SLAVE DRIVER

THINK are the days of the short, condensed talks, in editorials or elsewhere.

Election day approaches. The people of this country are on trial. The question before them is, Will you, before it is too late, take back control of your government and drive the monster from the car in this picture?

Or are you going to toil on, tugging at the rope and sent to the lash?

Is it TRUE, or not, that millions of human beings are fastened to the hawser that hauls this heavy Trust car?

HAVE YOU seen prices go up, have YOU strained harder and harder to meet the demands that the Trusts put upon the people whom they tax "without representation"?

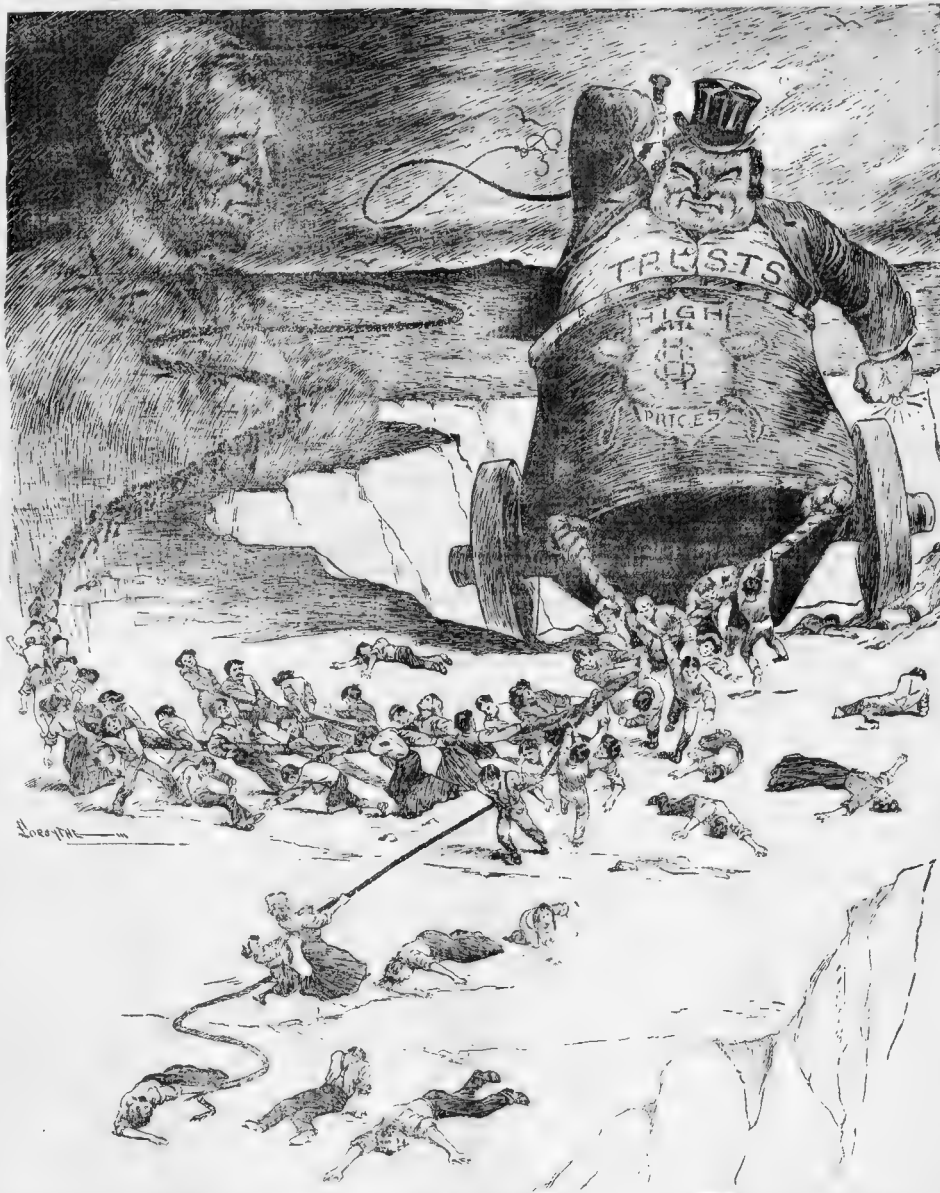

Have you studied out the innumerable ties by which the Trusts fasten you to their car? You pull on this rope when you pay the high prices for food and when you pay the high and ever-increasing taxes. You pay all the taxes because the Trusts won't pay any. The whole tax burden is on your homes.

You pull on the rope when you pay the price of life's necessities, gas, sugar, ice, coal, railroad transportation, ARTIFICIALLY ARRANGED BY A POWER BEYOND YOUR CONTROL, BUT NOT BEYOND YOUR BALLOT.

The Trust candidate has the impertinence in his campaign to quote LINCOLN. And he quotes LINCOLN as he stands on the platform of a hall hired by the Trusts, or from a car that the Railroad Trust puts at his service free of charge.

Here is a brief quotation from Lincoln. Will the Trust candidate read THIS out loud at any public meeting?

"In the early days of our race the Almighty said to the first of our race, 'In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread'; and since then, if we except the light and the air of Heaven, no good thing has been or can be enjoyed by us without having first cost labor. And inasmuch as most good things are produced by labor, it follows that all such things of right belong to those whose labor has produced them. But it has so happened, in all ages of the world, that some have labored, and others have without labor enjoyed a large proportion of the fruits. This is wrong, and should not continue. To secure to each laborer the whole product of his labor, or as nearly as possible, is a worthy object of any good government."

Every man and every woman must pull on the rope. What would be the thoughts of the noble Lincoln in the distance?

The problem of you citizens WHICH MUST BE SOLVED BY THE BALLOT, is here: plainly and simply by Abraham Lincoln.

How you secure for yourselves, whether you be laborers or business men, "THE WHOLE PRODUCT OF YOUR LABOR, OR AS NEARLY AS POSSIBLE." You can take it or leave it. THIS YEAR.

You know the answer for you to keep for yourself the product of your brain and muscle and energy AS LONG AS THE TRUSTS ARE PERMITTED TO HELP THEMSELVES TO YOUR EARNINGS.

Will you let them work harder and harder each year, trying to make for your family, IF THE TRUSTS CAN GET THE PRICE UP HIGHER AND HIGHER EACH YEAR, and take for themselves what you have earned?

Will you let them here. You will listen to every specious argument that will ingeniously can devise.

Will you let the trusts that so often nominate or buy your representatives pay the biggest price for the best brains that they can get. It is for you to reject sophistry and TO KEEP THE ONE BIG TRUTH IN YOUR MIND, asking yourself always concerning a candidate, "DO THE TRUSTS WANT HIM? If so, why do they want him?"

If the trusts that have steadily robbed me and taken my government the place that belongs to the people WANT THIS MAN, is it not my interest and my duty to vote against him? VOTE AGAINST THE TRUSTS.

Doesn't every woman in the United States responsible for a home and for children feel the trust lash as she pays her household bills?

Doesn't every man who goes into a restaurant to buy his simple meal realize that every price is constantly going higher?

Is not rent going up and everything else going up? What is to be the END of this taxing of the public by the trusts? How can there be ANY end to it until the people with their votes shall put the fear of their power even in the dull trust minds?

It is useless to feel or express anger at the merchant with whom you deal. The man who sells you milk HAS GOT TO CHARGE YOU MORE if the trust charges HIM more. Between the farmer, who does the hard work and takes the risk and gets so little, and you, the consumer, there stands the RAILROAD TRUST with its extortionate rates and the MILK TRUST with ITS shameful extortion.

On these election day you will vote either to frighten the trusts or you will vote to MAKE THEM FEEL THAT THEY CAN SAFELY CONTINUE TO DRIVE YOU AND TO ROB YOU.

Every trust owner is watching this election with keen interest. If you vote for the man that the trust hates and fears, DON'T YOU KNOW THAT YOU WILL CHECK THEIR GREED?

These trust managers are among the ablest, most far-seeing, as well as the most cold-blooded in the country.

They will re THE MEAN VOTES.

If the people scatter, as they have done so often, some voting FOR the trusts and SOME against, with only a small majority against trust rule, or no majority at all, this trust extortion and unauthorized taxation will continue worse and worse. A GREAT majority is demanded.

CHOOSE YOU ARE ON TRIAL, at this election. Your intelligence, your power to stand together, THE FEARLESSNESS OF YOUR DESIRE FOR REAL GOVERNMENT BY THE PEOPLE, will be tested on next election day.

You will listen before then to every lie that can be invented by the cunning and unscrupulous men who are trusts here. You will listen to every specious argument that will ingeniously can devise.

Character Building

It is the kind of people who are the backbone of the nation. It is the kind of people who are the backbone of the nation. It is the kind of people who are the backbone of the nation.

I have known a great man, whose influence in his own circle and society and club life was so great that it was said that he was the backbone of the nation.

I have known a great man, whose influence in his own circle and society and club life was so great that it was said that he was the backbone of the nation.

Just what a monstrous world this would be were all men and women doing only reformatory and charitable work.

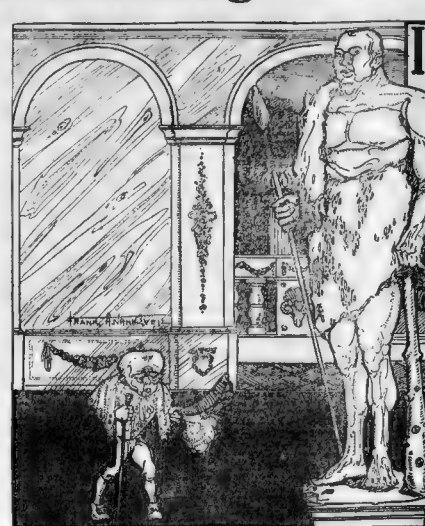

The woman of fashion has her place in the world. It is the kind of people who are the backbone of the nation. It is the kind of people who are the backbone of the nation.

The one important thing in life is to grow. To grow in our chosen work, or in the work which has been given to us to do, and to make it a worthy progress, means to be building character.

No artist can improve in his painting unless he is improving in his character. No artist can improve in his painting unless he is improving in his character.

There are many different ways in which we may improve ourselves. There are many different ways in which we may improve ourselves.

Do something with your time! Do something with your time! Do something with your time! Do something with your time!

Do something with your time! Do something with your time! Do something with your time! Do something with your time!

IN AN OLD GALLERY

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

BEFORE the statue of a giant Hun

There stood a dwarf, misshapen and uncouth.

His lifted eyes seemed asking, "Why, in sooth,

Was I not fashioned like this mighty one?

Would God show favor to an older son,

Like earthly kings, and beggar without ruth

Another, who sinned only by his youth?

Why should two lives in such divergence run?

Strange, as he gazes, that from a vanished past,

No memories revived, of war, and strife,

Of misused prowess, and of broken law,

That old Hun's spirit, in the dwarf recast,

Lived out the sequence of an early life.

It was the statue of himself he saw!

arks at twenty. If you grow dissatisfied with those toys as you pass into your teens, it is because you are growing up. You need larger occupations.

If you find yourself dissatisfied and restless as you pass out of the twenties, it is because you need more than that early stage of things. You must not try to cling to the same things which pleased you five years ago.

You are suffering with growing pains, and you must learn to grow. You are a vine, and you must reach up to a wall or a trellis, or else you will trail along the earth and be trodden under foot.

But you are a conscious and immortal vine, and you can choose your own wall, your own trellis, your own trees. You can climb in the direction you wish, if you really wish to have a sensible, clear, open mind.

However full your days may seem to be, there is always time to do some one thing more, persistently and regularly.

If you decide you will positively do this thing, whatever it may be, you will be astonished at the way obstacles vanish from your path.

Difficulties cannot stand before Determination. Resolve is a sun which dominates the heavens of circumstance.

Purpose is an axe which cleaves its way through jungles and forests. If you are a woman of flesh and making each season a replica of the past, you are laying out a path of misery for yourself by so doing.

Unless you are acquiring new mental and spiritual accomplishments, you will cease to grow. The old measures of your life will not supply you with new and larger accomplishments. Only by developing yourself, becoming greater in character and in spirit, can you hope to hold your own in this world of change and flux.

Just as the forests and fields and the Milky Way are composed of a variety of different things, so is the human mind and just as there are all sorts of people and all sorts of things in the world, so there are all sorts of people in the world.

There is no happiness for any of us anywhere unless we are constantly growing and making something of ourselves, going forward.

Because that is the object and purpose of existence.

A Short Cut to Fame

By William F. Kirk

GOOD wedding song ought to go this time of year," said the Song Writer, "and I believe I've got the idea."

"For no reason in particular I agreed with him and waited for some light."

"You see," explained the Song Writer, "to be a genuine hit a wedding song must give either the bride or groom the worst of it, and held a few lines ready or at least a pathos. You remember how well 'The Fair Wedding' went, don't you? Well, how much of a success would it have been if called 'The Happy Wedding'? Who would ever have heard of it? The other night my wife and I had a few words about something, and she says to me, 'My dear, I am afraid that on my wedding day I walked up the aisle with a lemon.'"

The Song Writer unfolded a few sheets of crumpled paper and prepared to declaim.

"I ought to explain before going any further," he said, "that the scene of this song is laid in Cincinnati, which is the deep home of the characters in said song. People who are obliged to live in Cincinnati grow sour before their time—more so than I can tell. Well, listen to this:

"You Have Handed Me a Lemon, Parson, Dear"

"I am afraid that on my wedding day I walked up the aisle with a lemon."

CHORUS. You have handed me a lemon, parson, dear; I can never do with Almon, I fear.

For one sure like a lemon, dear, And he says so, so sure, so sure.

CHORUS. You have handed me a lemon, parson, dear; I can never do with Almon, I fear.

"FOR THE HEART OF A CHILD HOME WHEN THE DAY OF ADVENTURE IS DONE"

PAN

"Peter Pan," as the artist saw him, a-flying

By Eleanor Ames.

"For the heart of a child goes home when the day of adventure is done." There you have it—the truth is an aphorism—the real reason for the popularity of "Peter Pan," an impossible fairy story which is packing the House Theatre to its doors eight times a week with an audience which consists, not of delighted children, but of men and women young, middle-aged and old.

And that is why these grown-ups sit spellbound through five acts of Peter's adventures, why they publicly and earnestly declare their belief in fairies: why they are not ashamed of tears, and mean why they come out after the final curtain with joyful tears and the air of having fallen down for a moment the burden of care and time.

The heart of their childhood has been awakened.

They have been taking a little trip backward—going home to childhood—after the long day of battling adventure in the world.

"Peter Pan" is the most remarkable of plays.

No one but Barrie, with his quaint imagination, his refreshing humor, his wholesome, heart-touching philosophy, his delicate, graceful expression, could have written it.

Certainly no one but Maude Adams would have dared to play it.

Anyone else in the world would have made it either seemingly absurd or tiresomely foolish.

Maude Adams strikes the happy medium and plays with the spirit of Barrie's imagining and wording.

Here and here alone is the spectacle personally which fits Peter Pan's elfish nature.

Here and here alone, the airy, playful, radiant art that makes the impossible seem real.

"Peter Pan" and "Maude Adams," the names strike your ear at all times and in all places.

Lesson Taken to Heart
by One Young Mother

At tea yesterday the matinee's beautiful young creature overheard a cup with cream, while she rustled in her dictionary of adjectives over the charm of play and payer. An older woman in a faded dress and a faded hat, who had been dabbed her eyes with her handkerchief, chief:

"There was a big lump in my throat and the tears would fall every time I thought of those blessed boys home without a mother and wanting one so much."

A sweet-faced young matron looked earnest as she said:

"It has taught me a lesson. Peter Pan has away because he heard his people planning for a future. He didn't want to grow up. He reminded me of my Audubon. I have great ambitions for him. But he wants to be just a boy."

"My sister's crazy about 'Peter Pan' and Maude Adams," said one young chap to his companion as they passed. "But Jim went and he says it's not much of a man's play."

An energetic and clever woman was late in keeping an appointment.

"Oh all upset," she announced as she seated herself at the table and pulled off her gloves. "I've been to see Maude Adams in 'Peter Pan.'"

"Good!" I queried.

"Haven't you seen it? Then don't. It's silly trash. Why a spot of light drizzle poem and a bit of a love ballad. Maude Adams is a good girl, and some balls rattles. Then she's a town to the footlights and says, 'Tinker bell says so.' And yet well if people believe in fairies. (All all who believe in fairies clap their hands or wave their handkerchiefs and all those foolish people clapped and waved.)

"What did you do?" I asked. "I came home," was the reply. "I had seen just enough. It seems to me there are enough sensible realities with out creating a silly fairy tale."

The girl at the glove counter was telling her friend about it.

A Play to Think About
and Then to See Again

"It's the greatest play!" she enthused, and Maude Adams is the greatest thing. Truly, she looks like a fairy! I dream about the play all night. Honest, I did. I dream I was in my bed and I was a child and the room was just like the one in '14. Peter Pan came in, through the window and I flew away, after him, and suddenly my senses gave out and I came down to earth, unable to remember what I was crying."

"Thus ended for a delight or an ordeal, whichever it might prove, I saw 'Peter Pan.'"

"And ever since I've been thinking about it."

I'm going to see it again. I haven't quite 'separated' yet, and I don't know whether I like it or not.

In my childhood's days the mere suggestion of fairies made me feel happy and the mention of a fairy story sent me into a rage. It was a feeling, inspired by such cheerful tales as "The Princess and the Pea," "The Giant Killer," which are an insult to the intelligence of any child, as well as a wickedly harmful.

And the action of the Mother Culture class in putting the ban on fairy tales has seemed most commendable.

But fairies have a different and sadder and savor meaning when Peter Pan explains to Mandy that, "When a boy laughs for the first time the laugh breaks off and becomes a fairy and goes skipping away to the Never, Never, Never Land."

And you feel a pang of conscience when he goes on to explain that "Whenever any one says he doesn't believe in fairies, then a fairy dies."

You squint uneasily and don't think how many of the fanciful, fantastic, and divine your words have destroyed. Probably that is why you snap your hands and say, "I never saw a fairy."

Peter Pan wouldn't grow up and run away to escape being President, and became the idolized leader of the boys of Never, Never Land, who left earth for the fairy home after having been out of perambulators.

He loved stories and he flew down to earth to hear them in the good-night stories that earth children hear at bedtime when their mothers tuck them into bed. And in one of his crises he had his sword cut off by the audience clashing of a window in the darkness of the night, and, searching for his shadow, he took Wendy back to be a mother to the lost boys, and took her two small brothers to join the band of "Lost Boys."

Oh, what a good time they had in their underground fairy home, guarded from their enemies the Pirates, by their friends, the Red Skins!

Little Mandy Wendy made stockings in fairyland—and little father Peter Pan brought home goodies in his pockets for "the children," and they kept Michael in a cradle, though he declared he was too big, because Wendy said that "a cradle is such a nice, cozy thing to have about the house."

And finally Wendy and John and Michael, the earth children, wanted to go back, and the band of lost boys possesses, this frail, slender, sweet, but by no means beautiful woman. There are times when magnificence is inevitably out of proportion to size seems something eerie, and more fairy-like than the most elaborate of stage effects.

A lovely Indian maiden in the guardian Red Skin band calls Peter Pan, "The Sun, the Moon, the Stars—a lump of Delight!"

It is a sentiment akin to that affection which the public feels for Maude Adams.

"I am youth, eternal youth, I'm the sun rising, I'm poet singing, I'm the new world, I'm joy, joy, joy!" carols Peter Pan to the wicked Pirate Captain, as they fence in desperate battle. And what Prince Captain, what door of dark deeds, could withstand a presence like that?

"No! Captain! I'll go with you into the sea to be devoured by the crocodile."

went along with them.

Only Peter Pan, with breaking heart, stayed behind.

Wendy knew she was all right, for her mother would leave the window open.

Peter Pan had long ago found the "law" of his home chord and in other little boy in his bed.

So away they went, only to be captured by Pirates, a whole band of opera pirates, saved by Peter and welcomed by parents.

"For the heart of a child goes home when the day of adventure is done."

Mr. Barrie wrote the play because Maude Adams seemed so fitted for it. Maude Adams threw Shakespeare's heroes and heroines aside for "Peter Pan."

Believes She's Peter Pan
and so Does Audience

"I loved him the moment I met him," she says. "No other play had ever appealed to me like this. I felt I had to be Peter Pan, and finally I almost believed I was Peter Pan."

And she makes the audience believe it. That's the whole secret.

Nobody but Maude Adams could accomplish that. And yet Maude Adams does not submerge her personality.

She has the little shoulder shrug, the throaty voice, the sidelong glance of mischief, the trick of talking through the teeth, that belong to Maude Adams whether she plays Lady Babbalanza or Phoebe Terrell, or Juliet, or L'Aiglon, or the pathetic little rag-bag of a laundry girl in "Oop-Me-thunk," which is a much more of a greater artist than all the others.

It is an indescribable art that she possesses, this frail, slender, sweet, but by no means beautiful woman. There are times when magnificence is inevitably out of proportion to size seems something eerie, and more fairy-like than the most elaborate of stage effects.

A lovely Indian maiden in the guardian Red Skin band calls Peter Pan, "The Sun, the Moon, the Stars—a lump of Delight!"

It is a sentiment akin to that affection which the public feels for Maude Adams.

"No! Captain! I'll go with you into the sea to be devoured by the crocodile."

Belongs to the Public
Only When on the Stage

Close to the hearts of a great public which fills more than one country—and yet entirely a stranger to that absorbing public. That is Maude Adams's position.

She has never let down the fences between her private life and the theatrical career. She has succeeded in doing what so few actresses of the day have done: she has divorced home and theatre.

She loves the public, yes, she is grateful for praise, and support, and admiration, and sympathy, and success. Indeed she is.

When she is on the stage, then she belongs to the public.

She gives up her highest art, her sweetest smiles, her sincerest effort, her heart and soul interest.

When she leaves the stage, she belongs to her own skin and a few friends.

She has a peaceful, restful summer home at Lake Umbagog, on Long Island, and a town house on East Forty-third street, near Fifth avenue. She lives a simple, wholesome, normal life.

Her library is far richer in stock than her jewel case, and she has fewer and simpler clothes than a schoolgirl. She poses less than the simplest child, and she shrinks from attention or publicity with something almost akin to fear.

Those who know say that she is the best Shakespearean scholar of her age in America, and Shakespeare and Herbert Spencer furnish her with a good share of her reading.

Maude Adams finds recreation in her music, playing the piano well, and singing, sweetly, but not powerfully.

If she has a rad-she denies that she has—it is collecting anything rare or unusual, books, furniture, china, powder, glass.

Relaxation is the actress whom she would rather be like than any one else, but she would never sacrifice her individuality.

"Beating straight" is her definition of success, and it has proven a good one in her case.

"I'm youth, eternal youth, I'm joy, joy, joy!"

It was Maude Adams's own cry long before it was Peter Pan's.

Has Vanquished Sorrow
With Assertion of Joy

She has never allowed the world to lose its freshness: life is too-hue, she has vanquished sorrow and misery and unwhimsies with an assertion of joy, just as in "Peter Pan" she conquers the Pirate Chief.

There's a lesson for all of us.

Light dispels darkness; smiles chase frowns away; joy will throw unwhimsies down.

WEST ROXBURY RESIDENCE ADJACENT TO FIDELIA PARK, AND DIAGRAM OF PARK.
Lots black are the ones referred to in accompanying table, which have increased remarkably in value.

These lots began to be sold in the middle of the last summer. The present owners cannot be induced to sell. Building operations are in progress, and within another year it is predicted, Fidelity Park will be one of the most beautiful residential sections of West Roxbury. The lots are now being sold for from $100,000 to $200,000 per acre.

How Real Estate Investment Brings Profit in Quick Time

THIS table shows at a glance the advantage of real estate investment to the man who works for a living, and who is seeking a safe and profitable place to deposit his savings. In four months the purchasers of these parcels have made from 25 to 80 per cent. profit. The lots are indicated by numbers on the accompanying map. The completion of the new Forest Hills terminal at the Boston Elevated before next summer will bring this land within twenty minutes' ride of Dudley street.

| Lot No. | Square Feet. | Sold in June | Offer for Oct. |
|---------|--------------|--------------|----------------|
| 8       | 4,500        | $150        | $225          |
| 21      | 5,000        | 200          | 250            |
| 22      | 5,000        | 200          | 250            |
| 44      | 6,885        | 175          | 225            |
| 45      | 6,735        | 175          | 225            |
| 46      | 6,785        | 175          | 225            |
| 47      | 6,885        | 175          | 225            |
| 48      | 6,885        | 175          | 225            |

In you notice what this means! It will tell you that the young man who invests in real estate is a wise man. He will always have the land, and the land will always be worth more. The accompanying table, showing four months' profit, has already been made. The report of the Boston Elevated, showing a profit of $100,000, is a sure sign that the land is worth more. It is a sure sign that the land is worth more. It is a sure sign that the land is worth more.

Benefit at Bijou for the San Francisco Orphans

To aid the orphans of San Francisco, made homeless by the recent earthquake, John Craig of the Bijou Theatre has volunteered to give a benefit on the evening of Tuesday, November 6.

The fund to be used to care for and educate these helpless little ones has been growing rapidly. A number of entertainments have already been given for it. If those who contribute in no other way will attend the performance arranged by Mr. Craig, they may rest assured that whatever they pay for their tickets will be of inestimable benefit to the homeless children on the Pacific coast. These little ones have lost their natural protectors. Someone must look out for them, feed them, clothe them, educate them, and they may become happy, upright, useful citizens of this country. They shall be placed in such positions that they can depend upon themselves and make their own way in the world. To permit of this they must be given a fair start, must be guarded and provided for until they are able to provide for themselves.

DYSPEPSIA CURED

Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona Aids Digestion.

For dyspepsia and chronic constipation the Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine of Cinchona is an undiluted cure. It acts in a natural manner, increasing the digestive fluids and stimulating the natural movement of the bowels. The following letter should convince anyone of the value of this marvelous tonic and corrective: "I have been suffering from dyspepsia for many years. I have tried many remedies, but none have done me much good. I have been told to take Trappist Fathers' Phosphated Wine, and I have done so. I am now cured. I am now cured. I am now cured."

The CHILD without a childhood

There are more than two millions of child-laborers in this country—child slaves, forced to toil from morning till night with undeveloped, half-starved bodies and minds that become degenerate. Their cry for help is voiced in November Cosmopolitan by

The Girl who travels ALONE

It was the proud boast of all zealous Americans for many years that this was a country in which a young woman might safely travel from sea to sea without a companion, as chivalrous were our men, so helpful and hospitable were our women. Europeans, hearing this boast, often remained unconvinced.

This theory held good up to a decade or two ago. Could it be confidently counted upon at the present day? An answer to this question will be found in Eleanor Gates' series of articles on "The Girl Who Travels Alone," the first installment of which appears in this issue of the Cosmopolitan. This magazine has presented many articles on social conditions, but in none has there been so widespread and vital an interest as there will be in "The Girl Who Travels Alone." And this is for the reason that the problem reaches into every household where there are girls and women. Miss Gates, who is the author of that charming study of Western life, "The Biography of a Prairie Girl," and of the no less carefully drawn "Flow-Woman," is a young woman of the West who has also lived several years in New York. She has crossed the continent eight times. When she tells of the experiences of the lone girl traveling, she knows what she is writing about. At the same time her work is done with the delicacy of a graceful and uplifting woman.

Millions in Dividends—Gold, Silver, Lead

THE GREAT YAK TUNNEL AT LEADVILLE, COLORADO.

A GILT-EDGE INVESTMENT

The 2,000,000 tons of low grade ore estimated by engineers to remain at this day on the several lodes in the lower workings, and are estimated to average no less than $6.00 a ton and when concentrated in our future mill should average no less than $1.00 a ton clear profit above transportation and smelter charges and estimated profit of $2,000,000—a very conservative estimate—this wealth is sufficient, with the concentration plant to be erected by the Company after the tunnel's completion, to make practically what may be honestly considered a guarantee to investors against loss, and not only that, but also a sure return of the money they invest several times over. What could be a stronger guarantee? The wealth is all there and cannot be stolen. In addition to the perfect safety of this proposition, which should be considered an investment and not a speculation as most all mining propositions are, you have the promise held out by this storehouse of wealth, which is already developed and proven mine, millions of dollars of dividends furnished by high grade ore which our tunnel will furnish, and for which principally the tunnel is projected. In addition to all of this rich promise, look at the millions of dividends that should be paid from the royalties demanded by this mining tunnel company from the several rich mines adjoining and on both sides of the tunnel route.

Let us make one point clear to you. When the large fortunes were taken from the Dinero mines by the early owners, those owners divided their wealth and sold their property to mining men of small means, and a new era was begun. For many years worked the upper dry levels for medium grade ore, and even since have taken out by their own hands or by leasing as high as $12,000 a year net, after paying smaller charges. The people who leased their properties and worked them paid small royalties. Could the owners have worked the mines themselves and had the benefit of their profit, they might have out of Dinero Consolidated secured these several properties so soon as they obtained the valuable tunnel rights from various mine owners and long term leases on other mines that have been large producers, but which had also shut down on account of the same conditions, namely, the acid water, which made mining too expensive by pumping water and hoisting ore through shafts and transporting it by wagon over mountain roads an extra mile and a half to the railroad. The tunnel from the base of the mountain 3100 feet long, almost on a level, saves the mile and a half wagon transportation over a winding down hill road.

Three railroads run in and out of Leadville, the Colorado Midland, the Denver & Rio Grande, and Colorado Southern, which give this company the cheapest kind of transportation of ore to the smelters. Hence, as our tunnel will be graded to 1,000 feet of our tunnel's mouth, and when the tunnel is completed this railroad will run a switch to the tunnel. Hence, as our tunnel will be lighted by electricity, and the train cars run by electricity, the millions of tons of high grade and low grade ore will be hoisted and easily transported direct from the ore bodies and lower workings of our mines through our tunnel, dumped into the railroad cars direct, and shipped to the largest custom smelter in the world, only two miles and a half away in Leadville.

When you read and think over what is said by Mr. Gray and Mr. Christian, and of the statements I have made, you will see that the mine is a gold mine, which will be mined in years with maps of the surface claims and of the lower workings on receipt of coupon and request, you must surely be convinced that never before has the public had an opportunity to buy stock at ground floor prices in a proven and developed mine.

Do you realize that, according to census reports, the mine of our country pay

$328,547,000 for Leadville

Leadville has Produced $328,547,000—Produced Last Year $13,000,000, and its Present Monthly Output is 90,000 Tons of Ore.

Sugar Loaf Mountain, four miles from Leadville, has produced $12,000,000. The Dinero Mines, in the center of the richest veins in this mountain, including the Mother Lode, have produced about $1,500,000 to water level—an average depth of less than 400 feet.

The Dinero Consolidated Mining and Tunnel Company owns, leases and controls about 100 acres, including the famous Dinero Mines, from which a quarter million dollars alone was taken from a space 80 by 60 feet on one vein.

The Dinero Tunnel will be bored 3,045 feet from the base of the mountain and will cut the Dinero veins at about the depth of 1,000 feet below the surface—five or six hundred feet under the old workings, which were closed down years ago because of the acid-eating waters destroying the necessarily expensive pumps and pipes.

The tunnel will drain off this water, and the incalculable wealth of the flooded lower levels will be ready for us. The deeper you go the richer is the ore, and so Leadville mine has ever given out. Here is a vast treasury of wealth, and the tunnel is the key that opens it.

EMINENT MINING ENGINEER SAYS:

From the full report of the examination of the Dinero mining properties by Mr. J. C. F. Christian, the eminent mining engineer, we give the following extracts in exactly his own words:

"At the mouth of the tunnel has been sunk what is known as the Dinero Shaft to a total depth of 380 feet, from which six separate levels have been run to the north. NONE OF WHICH, HOWEVER, HAVE BEEN DRIVEN FAR ENOUGH TO PENETRATE THE ORE BODIES DEVELOPED AT AND BELOW THE TUNNEL LEVEL, WHICH LEAVES BODIES OF ORE EXPOSED OF ALMOST INCALCULABLE VALUES. However, from these shallow workings—not exceeding 250 feet depth from the surface—more than $800,000 worth of ore have been extracted, whose values per ton vary from 25 to 100 ounces silver and 1 to 3 ounces gold."

"But at a point 300 feet north of the shaft a rich ore body was mined whose values were from $40.00 to $100.00 per ton above cost of treatment. Some portions of the shute give values at $500.00 per ton."

"From the BUCKEYE STATE VEIN (one of the Dinero Consolidated mines) was mined the largest separate ore body ever mined in the mountain, and from the records of the smelter returns preserved, it is learned that more than $600,000 has been shipped from the vein, the ore carrying from $20.00 to $80.00 in gold per ton."

"Other properties of reports on Sugar Loaf Mountain have a record of producing together up to $7,000,000, including such well known mines as the 'Gunnison,' 'New Discovery' and 'Michigan Boy' (recently purchased by the Dinero Consolidated, and added to their already large holdings)."

Because of the immense cost of installing and maintaining proper pumping plants (due to the destructive character of the water and difficulty and cost in keeping machinery in repair and furnishing fuel supplies); the only feasible and economical method of working the property of the Dinero mines or any other property on Sugar Loaf Mountain is by the CONSTRUCTION OF A TUNNEL FROM THE FOOT OF SUGAR LOAF MOUNTAIN AT A POINT ON LITTLE SUGAR LOAF GULCH, near its junction with Lake Fork Creek.

The length of such tunnel from its mouth to its intersection with the Dinero vein at or near the Dinero shaft, would be approximately 3,100 feet and would gain a depth of 700 feet from the surface and 320 feet below the deepest workings of the property which are in the Dinero shaft, and as the tunnel is projected along the vein, AN ADDITIONAL DEPTH OF 250 FEET WILL BE GAINED AT THE NORTHERLY END OF THE PROPERTY (SO THE TUNNEL WILL GIVE THIS COMPANY, TO A LARGE EXTENT AS MUCH AS 570 FEET DEPTH OF SOLID ORE FROM THE LOWER WORKINGS WHICH WERE ABANDONED TO THE WATER, DOWN TO OUR TUNNEL LEVEL).

For the economical driving of the tunnel and the later operation of the mine, more than sufficient power can be generated on Lake Fork Creek to successfully operate all and every motive power required; the power being transmitted less than 500 feet from the point where generated to the distributing point at the mouth of the tunnel.

The cost of such tunnel, including power and transmitting plants, should not exceed $50,000.00, which, in view of the values of the immense already developed ore bodies, which will be controlled by it, makes the investment of this amount one of the most feasible, economical and safe propositions which is presented in the mining West. FOR WE BELIEVE THAT THE RETURNS WILL NET AT LEAST THE EQUAL OF THE ENTIRE PRODUCTION TO DATE OF ALL THE VEINS ON SUGAR LOAF MOUNTAIN.

(Signed) J. C. F. CHRISTIAN, Mining Engineer.

WHAT MINING EXPERT REPORTS.

From the lengthy and very complete report of Mr. D. M. Gray, the well-known ore-leader and mining expert, upon his thorough examination of the Dinero properties, and from his knowledge and statements of the Dinero mines and other properties owned and controlled by the Dinero Consolidated, we give also a few extracts in his own words:

While the records show there have been taken nearly $1,500,000 worth of ore from the Dinero and Buckeye State properties since and about $7,000,000 from the other properties of Sugar Loaf Mountain, it is a well known fact that fully $3,500,000 more have been transported from these mines in earlier days to smelters which have been destroyed with their records.

I am confident that the values to be derived from your mines through your tunnel will exceed the vast wealth taken from Sugar Loaf Mountain to date ($12,000,000) and as these veins are known to go deeper than man is able to work, THE FUTURE WEALTH IN STORE FOR THOSE IN CONTROL OF YOUR PROPERTIES AND TUNNEL RIGHTS still below the level of your tunnel, will be beyond estimation. When your tunnel reaches the ore bodies which were abandoned on account of acid-waters, I will show you assays in silver that will run from 2,000 to 5,000 on the ton regardless of gold and lead values. $25,000 was taken from the lower level of the Dinero from a small space of 60x80 feet on one vein.

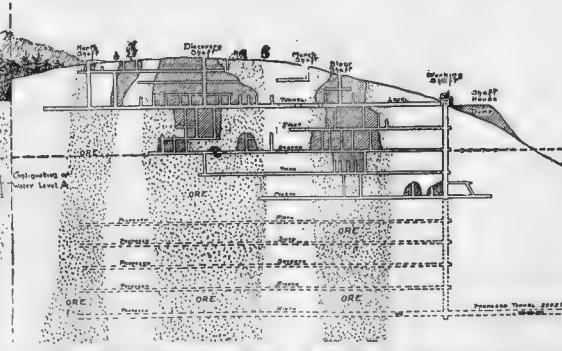

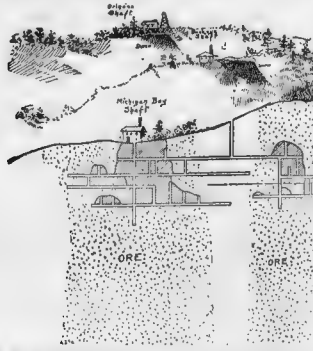

I estimate that there are over 1,000,000 tons of low grade ore left already mined in the various drifts and levels, which it did not pay to ship to smelters on account of the excessive transportation and smelter's charge prevailing in those days; I should judge there are from $500,000 to 1,000,000 tons of low grade ore on the several dumps of your property, and in one mammoth dump alone I have estimated $1,000,000 worth of ore. All these low grade ore will be available to a good profit with your contemplated concentrating mill. In addition to the nearly 100 acres of property you own, lease and control at this time, it is my belief that it lies within your power to add to your holdings from time to time until you eventually control the whole of Sugar Loaf Mountain, the great advantage of your company being that you already have enough property consolidated in one management more than to justify the expense of a tunnel which can be utilized to drain many of these properties, any one of which alone could not afford the expense of its own tunnel.

The Bartlett tunnel, at one end of the mountain, bored 1,500 feet to gain a depth of 20 feet. It paid them handsomely, and they are shipping today. If your company gained proportionately as much depth by your 3,100 foot tunnel you would gain about 50 feet, but as you will gain more than 500 feet under water level you will then gain ten times as great an advantage as the Bartlett, in point of expense, comparing the lengths of the two tunnels.

I, as well as other mine operators, have had Sugar Loaf Mountain in mind for many years, especially as after the Yakk tunnel of Leadville, the only other large tunnel in the Leadville district) began to produce its extensive tonnage from iron drift. I have known several wealthy operators to endeavor to secure the tunnel rights which you now possess, all of them in the best way I am able to find. All you need now is a tunnel such as I suggest, to make your property the largest combination of productive in the whole mining West; and I believe that neither yourselves nor myself will live long enough to see any cessation of the wonderful results from these mines through the agency of your tunnel.

I consider this mining and tunnel proposition one of the greatest mining deals, one of the safest, and should become one of the most profitable dividend-paying mining propositions that have ever come to my notice, and were it not for the fact that this great storehouse of mineral wealth is locked up as it is in a safe by the Dinero Consolidated, and the great wealth of the Dinero Mines and Sugar Loaf Mountain is only available by an extensive tunnel proposition like yours, you would never have gained possession of your mines and tunnel rights, and your 15-year lease on several of the richest of silver properties for your price. I consider your recent purchase of the Michigan Boy a most valuable addition to your already rich holdings.

(Signed) D. M. GRAY.

LAST CHANCE TO BUY STOCK AT 5 CENTS A SHARE

more money than all the banks and railroads combined? Do you realize that even the banks pay dividends which their profits are made by lending the money of thousands of depositors, who receive in return from 2 per cent. to 4 per cent interest on time deposits and very rarely any interest on regular deposit accounts? Do you realize that hundreds of these bankers take their dividends made by banking and invest in mining stocks from which they derive immense fortunes? There are well known facts. The public has many an opportunity to speculate in mining stocks that are based upon undeveloped mines and prospects which average ten times as much as ordinary shares. Generally these assays are from small pockets of ore and are no guarantee nor reliable promise that the ore veins will make a paying mine.

Copper mines are generally payers, but it takes many years to make dividend-paying copper mines. The few permanent paying gold mines are those of low grade ore, as a rule, and those that have large bodies. It takes years to make any kind of a producing mine that is developed as the Dinero is already today. This is your last chance to own Dinero stock at 5 cents a share. Only a limited amount is for sale at this price. On the night of November 15th the price of stock advances to 10 cents a share. Wait your order or were we at once the amount of stock to reserve for you, before the opportunity passes, and if you would make sure to get this stock at this ground floor price send one tenth of the amount of your order at least, by special delivery.

My advice is—Buy Dinero stock quickly and buy plenty of it. Should our 5-cent stock be over-sold when we receive your order, our treasurer will promptly return your money.

NEW TURBINE RACERS TO BREAK ALL SPEED RECORDS TO NEW YORK

VERNON COBB AND RECORD-BREAKING COURSE.

THE GOVERNOR COBB.

How Turbine Boats Cut Down Time from New York by Water

Time formerly made by boats on all-water route to New York from Boston—From twenty to twenty-four hours.

Best previous record made by the Henry M. Whitney and Herman Winters—Eighteen and three-quarter hours.

Time made by the Governor Cobb from New York to Boston—Sixteen hours and forty-eight minutes, including all sorts of speeds and stops for loading.

Time to be made by the new turbine racers, Yale and Harvard—Fourteen or fifteen hours.

Speed developed by Governor Cobb—Twenty-two miles per hour on an average.

Speed at which Yale and Harvard will run—Twenty-five miles an hour over whole course.

Power of Governor Cobb's turbine engines—Five thousand horse power.

Power of Yale and Harvard, now building—Eleven thousand horse power.

Plowing through the water at the rate of all-water course, from Boston to New York twenty-six miles an hour the new turbine boats will make the trip in fourteen or fifteen hours. Yale and Harvard, now being built. The performance of the new turbine will, next summer, put the "outside" of the Governor Cobb, which docked at the Pier where she was on last Wednesday.

NEW SMELTER EXPECTED COAST REGION Heavy Investments Being Made There by the Guggenheims COPPERS ARE NOW EASIER

By Thomas G. Skotwell.

New York, Dec. 27.—Temporary weakness in the copper market in London last week was due to the fact that the Guggenheims had been buying with the name of the company in connection with the copper market. The Guggenheims had been buying with the name of the company in connection with the copper market. The Guggenheims had been buying with the name of the company in connection with the copper market.

How Copper Turned Weak. Weakness in the copper market abroad has been due to a new movement of speculation or business of production. It has been due to a new movement of speculation or business of production. It has been due to a new movement of speculation or business of production. ## Some of Causes of the Boom in Silver Mining in Wall Street Guggenheims to erect smelter in Cobalt region. New mines to be opened in city of Cobalt as great Nipissing vein is believed to pass through the place. Activity in Wall street and new companies are being formed to develop the properties.

Manipulation of Mining Shares. Activity of mining stocks in the market has led to the charge by careful observers that they are being manipulated too heavily and speculatively. Of course, there is manipulation in the market, but it is not as heavy as it was some time ago. The market is now more stable and the prices are more reasonable.

Colorado's Point of View. Col. W. C. Greene objects to the statement made in this column last week that the copper market has been manipulated. He says that the market is now more stable and the prices are more reasonable. He says that the market is now more stable and the prices are more reasonable. # FORTUNE FOR YOU IN COPPER ONE CENT A SHARE DOWN AND ONE CENT A MONTH

Copper Pays the Biggest Dividend
The R. T. Copper Mine, in Arizona, has paid a dividend of $1.00 per share for the year ending December 31, 1905. This is the highest dividend ever paid by a copper mine. The dividend is paid in cash and is payable to the stockholders on January 1, 1906. The dividend is paid in cash and is payable to the stockholders on January 1, 1906.

COPPER PAID SIX HUNDRED MILLIONS IN DIVIDENDS
DIVIDENDS paid on COPPER PROPERTIES last year in the United States amounted to more than half-
OVER TO PER CENT—of the total cash dividends paid to stockholders in GOLD, SILVER, COPPER, LEAD and ZINC MINES.

If all the dividends of all the banks in the United States were added together, the sum total would be less than the dividends paid by the copper mines. It is not generally known, but the figures prove that the dividends paid by the copper mines are more than half of the total cash dividends paid to stockholders in GOLD, SILVER, COPPER, LEAD and ZINC MINES.

The greatest fortunes of today are being made in Copper mines. Almost every rich man whose name often occurs in public prints—Senator Clark, Governor Clark, Charles Clark, John Clark, and many others—owns copper stocks. Some first made their fortune in copper. Made their money otherwise, and now make their fortune over new fortunes from the perpetual dividends of copper.

BUY BOSTON GREENWATER COPPER AT THE MARKET!

Our Allotment of Treasury Stock, Offered Last Week at 45 Cents Per Share, Was Over-Subscribed by 500,000 Shares!

This Stock will sell at a dollar per share within thirty days and five dollars per share within twelve months is our earnest belief

READ THIS!

"A movement is under way looking to the amalgamation of all the principal mines in the Greenwater District, from and including Clark's Furnace Creek property on the west to Greenwater Death Valley on the east. This would include the Kuntze, Boston Greenwater Copper, and Oddie groups.

"That such a combination would make a magnificent property no one will question who is familiar with the district.

"The Heinze interests now dominate the Furnace, Furnace Creek Extension, Boston Greenwater, and are believed to control the Kuntze group. Such a combination should make for increased valuations of all the properties mentioned, and the stocks of same are likely to show sensational advances."—Goldfield Tribune, October 22nd, 1906.

We have satisfied ourselves that this is true. Already the Furnace Creek and Greenwater Death Valley have shown sensational advances. Furnace Creek, issued a year ago at 25 cents per share, has since sold at $8.00, while Greenwater Death Valley, issued at $1.00 a share sixty days ago, has since sold at $3.75.

That the "Boston Greenwater Copper" will repeat this is as certain as anything can be, for this group lies in the very midst of the properties mentioned; and it was the sensational values here found that made the Greenwater district famous.

The stock of the Boston Greenwater Copper Company is to be immediately listed on the principal mining exchanges of the country. Meanwhile we can fill orders on the curb between 55 and 80 cents.

Wire your reservations, with limit, and we will promptly confirm at the best obtainable price.

Remember this stock will sell at a dollar per share within thirty days, and five dollars per share within twelve months

ATTEMPT ON CZAR'S LIFE?

Persistent Rumors in St. Petersburg That Terrorists Tried to Assassinate Nicholas.

OFFICIAL DENIALS ARE SCOUTED BY PEOPLE.

Report Men Arrested in Palace Grounds with Bomb in Their Possession.

PETERHOF NOVY BORDERS ON STATE OF PANIC.

Emperor to Seek Safety in Tsarskoe-Selo—Social Functions Cancelled.

Special Cable to the Boston Sunday Mercurian.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 27.—It has been insistently rumored here to-day that an attempt has been made to assassinate the Czar, but it has been impossible to get anything like a verification.

According to one report two men were arrested in the grounds of the palace at Peterhof yesterday with a bomb, and that they were arrested and hurried to prison.

This is denied by the authorities, but it is generally believed by the public. It is known that since the Emperor's return from his yachting trip to Finnish waters, new threats have been made by the "terrorists" and that there have been renewed precautions taken by the police.

Every suspicious person is closely watched and every eye is turned to the palace is guarded day and night. No person is allowed to approach the grounds without being searched, and subjected to the closest questioning. There is no doubt that there is almost a panic at Peterhof over the serious outbreak of affairs. This was shown yesterday when it was announced that the royal family were to go to Tsarskoe-Selo for the winter and that the winter palace had been searched. There will be none of the usual court balls which have been such a marked feature of official life at the Russian capital. Both the Czar and the Empress have taken the liveliest interest in them in the past, and it is known that they would not be abandoned without some compelling cause.

How Hearst Is Conducting Whirlwind Campaign In New York Against Hughes

LAST WEEK.
Monday—Fifteen thousand pick Madison Square Garden at monster Hearst rally and great crowds attend three overflow meetings.
Wednesday—Thousands of East Side people greet Mr. Hearst at series of meetings.
Thursday—Great labor demonstration at Madison Square Garden.
Friday—Twenty-five thousand hear Mr. Hearst at Albany and Troy.
Saturday—Great addresses and great enthusiastic meetings in Brooklyn and Queens.

THIS WEEK.
Monday—Mr. Hearst will speak at Auburn and Syracuse.
Tuesday—Speeches at Seneca Falls, Waterloo, Geneva and Canandaigua.
Wednesday—Speeches at Medina, Lockport, Niagara Falls and Buffalo.
Thursday—Return to New York City. Addresses will be made in Manhattan and Brooklyn, the campaign to culminate on Monday night—the night before election—in a great meeting in one of the largest auditoriums in Greater New York.

New York, Oct. 22. In a whirlwind automobile tour of Brooklyn and Queens County tonight, W. R. Hearst addressed a meeting at the Madison Square Garden, where he was met by thousands of his followers. He then proceeded to the Brooklyn College of Arts and Sciences, where he addressed a meeting of the same name. He then proceeded to the Brooklyn College of Arts and Sciences, where he addressed a meeting of the same name. # FORD COMPANY NOT IN CHICAGO SHOW

The Ford Motor Company will be among those missing from the Chicago show. The fact that they had not applied for space was argued out shortly after the allotment of positions last week and it caused a running line of comment and speculation.

It is not clear how much was attributed to the weight of dissatisfaction with the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, but James Cossens, secretary of the Ford Motor Company, said that he and his staff, who are in New York, are in Chicago and frankly gave the trial commission a hard time. He said that his company has never found the Chicago exhibition a profitable one and that he thought it was not responsible for their absence from the list of exhibitors.

It is not clear whether the trial commission will be given a further bid, but it is not clear that they will be. The trial commission is not interested in the success of the Grand National Automobile Show, but it is interested in the success of the trial commission in the East.

POPE PRODUCTS AT SAME OLD STAND

The home of the Pope doctors in Boston is not to be changed. The Dodge Motor Vehicle Co., which has purchased the lower affairs of the Pope company, has decided to retain possession of the establishment on Columbus avenue, which has since its conversion with the Pope line of cars and busses.

The new firm takes hold on November 1, and will in every way promote the interests of the Pope line. The old and prosperous Dodge Motor Vehicle Co. will be found in the same place, and the Dodge Motor Vehicle Co., as running another line, is to be found in the same place.

Mr. Dodge, the head of the new firm, has made a statement to the motor bus press, by laying for several years handiwork of the Dodge Motor Vehicle Co. The Dodge has been retained by the new firm, as the second part and parcel of the old firm.

YALE CREW LOSES CLEVER OARSMAN

Yale has just lost a most promising oarsman for next season through a peculiar accident. Howe, who rowed No. 6 in the freshman eight last year, sustained the loss of his thumb when he was rowing a buoy race during the Summer vacation. It is impossible to hold an oar and the accident is unable to hold an oar in the variety eight will cost him a certain variety oarsmanship.

Another student, because Nehemiah, stroke of the variety four college, has decided not to return to college.

Captain Noyes has decided to make an innovation in Yale rowing for the year by forming a variety eight and setting it out before the Fall regatta. Instead of eight, the Fall rowing has been finished.

Chicago Boasts of a Motor Club "That Does Things"

BY L. COMSTOCK BOARDMAN.
Chicago, Oct. 27.—The first year of motor competition has been rounded up in Chicago. The season has been a great deal of ...the Chicago club was never able to promote any contest for obvious reasons. The one attempt at holding a race went proved disastrous. The inmates to do something that would create some interest in the future was investigated by the Chicago Examiner, which promoted the motor rally to New York in June. This set the ball rolling for the other companies.

NOVEL GAMES FOR ARTISTS SATURDAY.

Gymkhana Games Held on Newton Athletic Grounds Promise Good Sport.

BY J. C. KERRISON.

With the new day just now being opened, and the coming gymnastic games of the Bay State Automobile Association, it is not surprising that the artists of the city are not only interested in the games, but are also interested in the art of the automobile.

The games of the Bay State Automobile Association, which are to be held on Saturday, October 27, at the Newton Athletic Grounds, are of a most interesting nature. They are of a most interesting nature, and are of a most interesting nature.

The Maxwell THE CAR OF CONTENTMENT

YOU can't argue a Maxwell owner out of his conviction that the Maxwell is "the car for him." He has a proven fact and a practical demonstration for every theory or fact that you may present. "Performance," he says, is a whole lot better than "promise." He is contented because he can't see how a car could give more satisfaction than the Maxwell.

Note Its Work on the Non-Stop Test Between Boston and Worcester

At five o'clock Saturday the car had traveled 1,490 miles in 81 hours without once stopping the engine.

HOW THE PIANO TRUST Uses the Good Old Boston Firm Names TO GET BIG PRICES FOR THEIR Common Commercial Pianos

A few years ago we Bostonians could point with pride to the good old Boston names which stood for everything that meant artistic merit and honest values in Pianos—for in Boston we had the good fortune to have the finest piano makers in the world, men who put their very souls into their work, and when these men had their names graven on their instruments it was with the honest pride of genius. All we Bostonians gloried in their pride when we heard these honest names spoken with reverence by the best musical people of our country—and today—Today is the day of money, not music with the Piano Trust. The only music the Piano Trust cares for is the jingle of the dollars that is heard in the unjust profit they get when they "Play Upon You."

To you who have been reading our piano statements we wish to say this—We do not wish to mislead you in the least, there are still the makers of Pianos in the World in our good city and we hope to have them with us always, but there are several good names now being put on pianos which instead of meaning merit mean mendacity. The names of the men that once meant so much now serve as a decoy to the public to buy a Piano without a soul, without musical merit, without artistic value, without a shred of the genius of the men whose names NOW cloak a common Commercial Piano—a Piano whose parts are bought like so much old junk, bought in a dozen different trade centers of our country, bought wherever they can be bought the cheapest, bought by the ton and shipped into our city, Good Old Boston, as freight, just common commercial freight. The cases from N. Y.; the actions (hammers, felts, inside parts) from New York; the keys from Chicago, other parts from Philadelphia, Detroit, Philadelphia and several other places—any old place where they can be bought cheap. These parts are then assembled in Boston, that is, put together, thrown together, glued together, tacked and hammered together and then, after the soulless thing is framed up they put the good old firm name NOW is to express merit.

You ask why this change? The Piano Trust has bought out or frozen out some of our finest firms. (Not all, thank goodness, we have many fine makers left whose names mean all that is best in piano manufacture, and when the opportunity presents itself we are going to try their names in our advertisements, and we are now using the old names for their good will. In fact they are giving the Littleless of the present with the Glory of Past Greatness. We are seriously considering establishing a bureau of Piano information, at the disposal of the Public, whether they buy or not. We would like advice on the matter. Lots can be done to protect the public and the honest makers. Read our weekly announcements and get Piano wise.

Buy Your Piano Yourself—Don't Pay Agents.

When a dozen, two dozen, 30 or 100 fine Pianos, new or second-hand, get through force of circumstances, to our storage salerooms, we put on our sacrifice expense tag, and the piano goes regardless of maker, trust or no trust, to the first man or woman with brains enough to know a good thing when they see it.

STRAW BALLOT SHOWS VICTORY FOR MORAN AND BROWN

In Boston Alone the Poll Indicates 30,000 Plurality for Independence League and Democratic Candidates and the Capture of Republican Strongholds Through State.

GUILD AND DRAPER STRONGER IN WEST, LOSING GROUND IN EASTERN DISTRICTS.

Straw Balloting by Massachusetts Voters indicates that Moran will carry Boston by more than 30,000. Moran will carry Massachusetts by more than 45,000.

Straw ballots taken throughout Massachusetts on the state election indicate that John B. Moran will be elected Governor by a large plurality, the basis of the total Democratic and Republican vote last year, and his own ballot for Governor, he should carry the State by more than 30,000.

The straw balloting in Boston indicates a Moran plurality in this city of more than 30,000.

Boston and Brown by straw vote carried over Republican strongholds at Attleboro, Fitchburg, New Bedford, Newburyport, Newton, North Attleboro, Quincy, Taunton, and Woburn.

Straw balloting indicates that E. Gerry Brown will be elected by an emphatic plurality.

Many voters, Republicans, state that they will vote for Moran and Brown.

Guild and Draper appear to be holding their own in Western districts, but lose ground in most Eastern cities and towns.

John B. Moran, candidate for Governor on the Democratic, Independent League and the Prohibition ticket, and E. Gerry Brown, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor of the Democratic and the Independence League, will win at the polls if the citizens of Massachusetts vote on election day the straw ballot taken by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

The straw ballot shows a substantial lead for Moran and Brown over Guild and Draper, indicating a victory for the Democratic, Independent League and the Prohibition ticket, and E. Gerry Brown, candidate for Lieutenant-Governor of the Democratic and the Independence League, will win at the polls if the citizens of Massachusetts vote on election day the straw ballot taken by the BOSTON AMERICAN.

Moran's lead over Guild, 222.
Brown's lead over Draper, 576.
Total straw ballot vote, 2,961.
Total State vote in 1905, 59,321.

The votes were polled at factories, on the streets and in the homes of the voters. The straw ballot was taken in the form of a card, and the voters were asked to mark their choice by putting a cross in the box next to the name of the candidate they wished to elect.

Letter to Correspondents.
To BOSTON AMERICAN Correspondents:

We are sending you, by mail, blank votes to be used in taking the straw ballot. It is your duty to see that the ballot is taken in the form of a card, and the voters are asked to mark their choice by putting a cross in the box next to the name of the candidate they wished to elect.

Some Democrats for Draper.
In Boston, twenty-five Republicans said they would vote for Moran and twenty-eight Democrats announced their intention of voting for Guild. The latter party is showing a strong tendency to the party shifting more than other parties.

Many Party Ties Broken.
One of the most remarkable features of the straw ballot is the number of citizens who, according to their marking of ballots, signify their intention of breaking away from party ties. In some places, the strength of the Independent movement is manifest. The vote in Quincy, Woburn, Taunton and Fitchburg indicates that in some places there is a strong tendency to break away from party ties.

IMPARTIAL, DELIABLE BOYS GET STRAW VOTES

In Boston the straw ballot was taken by several hundred boys in the Metropolitan Building and the Commercial Union Building. They were selected from among the most active boys in the city and were sent out at various times during two days. They were given simple instructions and were told to vote on the straw ballot and to return it to the station along the street and delivery system and to receive the returned station. The youths were told to be accurate and impartial in their voting.

Usually the messenger boys gathered in the morning, and in the afternoon they got a vote or not. The employees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company at the Metropolitan Building and the Commercial Union Building were also asked to vote at all for Moran. Many citizens who said that they were not of the Republican party were asked to vote for Guild.

Straw Ballot Shows Loss of Eight Strongholds to Guild.
The BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN's straw ballot indicates Governor Guild will lose eight out of twenty Republican strongholds in the voting took place.

Attleboro, Fitchburg, Lynn, New Bedford, Newburyport, Newton, North Attleboro, Quincy and Taunton all go for Moran and Brown. Governor Guild carried all these places one year ago.

HAWTHORNE KAYS "SNOBS" IN NEW SPELLING CRUSADE
Since President Roosevelt and others of his belief have advocated reform spelling, the movement has met with little antagonism from many parts of the country. One of the most important and most determined objections was that made in New York at a state meeting in the rooms of the Board of Education.

It had been proposed to introduce the new method in the New York schools and the opposition was led by Professor Martin H. Vincent, who had been a member of the Board of Education. He had been a member of the Board of Education.

YOUNG PAIR FOUND WAY TO WED, SPITE OF PARENTS

Medway Lad and Lass Secretly Married at Blackstone, and Promptly Forgiven—Mr. and Mrs. Pollard Are Both 18.

Secretly, and despite the determined opposition of the parents of the girl, Miss Nellie Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, and Richard Pollard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollard, both of the town of Medway, were married, and are today receiving the congratulations of their many friends, who are laughing merrily over the way the young couple, not yet sixteen years of age, eluded maternal eyes and were made husband and wife. The wedding took place at Blackstone last Tuesday.

Forgiveness Daily Given.
The course of the true love of the lad and the lass seemed for a time to threaten to run amid obstacles that might prove insurmountable. In spite of the opposition to the marriage, the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phillips, and the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pollard, were both of the town of Medway, and were made husband and wife.

Pastor at First Demurred.
Pollard had secured a license to marry from Henry C. Austin, town clerk of Medway, on October 23, he having the written consent of his parents. The Rev. Mr. Austin, at first demurred, when the eighteen-year-olds presented themselves before him, but the prospective bridegroom argued his case convincingly and readily won with him. The Rev. Mr. Austin, at first demurred, when the eighteen-year-olds presented themselves before him, but the prospective bridegroom argued his case convincingly and readily won with him.
